The truth is that at the outset of the Church, there was no Bible. Oh, there were the volumes of what we call the Old Testament – the Jewish Bible – which tells us the story of how God worked in the world with His chosen people, Israel, but it only took them up to the time of Jesus, and the pre-church era they were creating, that was flowing into the establishment of the Church that they were in and that we know today. As we read through the gospel records and the writings of Paul and the other apostles, we get their inside view of the birth of the church, and we get to hear the Holy Spirit inspired teachings that they were building it on, and that carries on with us today. I love this stuff!

We've read through the four Gospels and Acts now, and this month I'm moving into Romans and the writings of James, Jude and Peter. These are wonderful, formative writings, not only for our early church fathers, but for us today as well.

Thank you, one more time, for joining me as I re-explore this wonderfully challenging stuff! Take some notes, if you feel like it, and give someone a call for some coffee time to kick some stuff around – we do learn best in community!

Shalom, D.P.
