Over the past few months, we've been working our way through a lot of Paul's writings – I love his stuff, and not because it's always so warm and fuzzy, but because it's so instructional on how I should be following Jesus in my Spirit walk. I've mentioned before that it was Paul's writings, in follow-up to the gospel records and the teachings and life practices of Jesus, that corrected my course over 50 years ago. While the correction process wasn't always easy on me, it has proven to be oh-so-much better than where I was in my faith journey before. This month we'll finish up a couple of Paul's letters, and then drop back into the Old Testament to pick up a couple of not-so-common readings.

Happy Fall and thanks again for joining me in my devotional reading journey! Let's see what the Holy Spirit has to say to us as we drift further into Fall. Take some notes and have coffee over this stuff if you get the chance.

Shalom,

D. P.
